Biographical note

Robert Adams (1937-), a photographer specializing in changing western American landscapes, was born in Orange, N.J. and moved to Colorado as a teenager. He received his doctorate degree in English from the University of Southern California in 1965 and was an assistant professor of English literature at Colorado College from 1962 to 1970. In the 1960s Adams taught himself photography and started his career photographing landscapes and urban growth primarily in Colorado, California, and Oregon. Adams has published more than thirty photography monographs since the 1970s namely What We Bought: The New World, The New West, and The Place We Live. Additionally, he is the recipient of many awards over the years including two National Endowments for the Arts Fellowships (1973 and 1978), Colorado Governor's Award in the Arts (1979) and the MacArthur Foundation Award (1994).

Scope and Contents note

This collection contains 283 gelatin silver prints and 46 copy negatives photographed by Robert Adams (1937-) between 1965-1972 in eastern and southern Colorado. Adams compiled these images into two photography books, White Churches of the Plains published in 1970 and The Architecture and Art of Early Hispanic Colorado published in 1974. Images depict churches, religious iconography, adobe buildings, landscapes, and cemeteries in various Colorado towns including Aguilar, Conejos, Elbert, Keota, Ramah, San Luis, Stoneham, and Trinidad. The collection contains images printed in these publications as well as unpublished images with alternate views and compositions.

Arrangement note

The collection materials are arranged in two series based on two of Robert Adams' published photography monographs:

Series I. White Churches of the Plains, 1965-1968 Series II. The Architecture and Art of Early Hispanic Colorado, 1964-1972
