Biographical/Historical note

Fred Payne Clatworthy (1875-1953) was a photographer and public lecturer primarily known for his mastery of the the autochrome screen plate process, an early color photography format. Clatworthy was born in Dayton, Ohio on August 30, 1875 to Emma Payne Clatworthy (1853-1936) and Frederick Clatworthy (1846-1905). He had one sister, Linda Clatworthy (1877-1933). Clatworthy received his first camera at 13 and began selling his images to family members. At 18, Clatworthy attended Dennison University in Granville, Ohio and later transferred to Stetson University in Deland, Florida. Clatworthy studied medicine and continued shooting photographs throughout his college years.

An avid traveler, Fred Clatworthy conceived of a plan to bicycle across the continental United States while in college. After his graduation from Stetson University in 1896, Clatworthy traveled by steamship to Brooklyn, New York. From there, he bicycled to his parents' home in Evanston, Illinois. He considered this the first leg of his cross-continental journey. He spent the next two years in the Chicago area working as an office boy and attending the University of Chicago Law School. Then, in June of 1898, Clatworthy embarked from his parents' residence and spent the next year bicycling across the Western United States. Clatworthy's route took him through Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, California, and Washington. He documented much of the journey with a 4x5" view camera. In 1900, Clatworthy traveled across the Yuma Desert from Los Angeles, California to Flagstaff, Arizona via wagon and mule team. He sold some of the photographs that he shot at Grand Canyon National Park during the trip to the Atchison, Topeka, & Sante Fe Railroad.

In 1902, Clatworthy returned to Colorado and bought a stake in a ranch near Loveland. Then, in 1904, he visited Estes Park and decided to relocate. Soon after his first visit, Clatworthy purchased two lots on the west end of Estes Park. He erected a tenthouse on the property and started a photography business. He used water from the nearby Thompson River to develop and print photographs. In 1905, Clatworthy built a small building on his property and named it Ye Littel Shop. In addition to serving as the base of Clatworthy's photographic operations, Ye Littel Shop also functioned as a curio store and sold a variety of items including furniture, produce, Kodak cameras, film, and Clatworthy's own images of the area. In the coming years, Clatworthy would develop additional business interests in the Estes Park area including rental cottages, a Spaulding Athletic Agency, a Kodak store, and briefly, a zippy laundry service. Clatworthy also served as the official photographer for the Stanley Hotel, Covenant Heights, and the Rocky Mountain Young Men's Christian Association at this time.

In 1911, Clatworthy married Mabel Leonard Clatworthy (1885-1971). They had three children: Fred Payne Clatworthy Jr. (1912-1995), Helen Clatworthy (1915-2001), and Barbara Clatworthy Gish (1921-2011). In 1912, construction was completed on the Clatworthy family home located on Riverside Drive in Estes Park. In the following years, the family would split their time between this residence and a second home purchased by Clatworthy in 1921 near Palm Springs, Calif.

Clatworthy began to produce autochromes, the format for which he would become internationally known, in 1914. In exchange for image use rights to Clatworthy's autochromes, railways and transportation companies began to send him on all-expenses-paid photo assignments to various locations. He was sent by the Great Northern Railroad to Glacier National Park in 1925; by the Matson Navigation Company to Hawaii in 1926; by the Union Steamship and Matson Navigation Companies to Polynesia (Hawaii, Tahiti, and New Zealand) in 1928; and by the Southern Pacific Transportation Company to Mexico in 1929 and 1930.

In 1917, Clatworthy presented autochromes of Estes Park and Rocky Mountain National Park (Colo.) before members of the U.S. Congress. Held at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C., Clatworthy's exhibition was part of an effort headed by Colorado senator John F. Shafroth to increase the area of RMNP. The senate passed Shafroth's bill, which had been stalled for the past year, the day after Clatworthy's presentation. It was also around this time that Clatworthy became acquainted with the National Geographic Society. Approximately 100 of his autochromes would appear in the pages of National Geographic magazine between 1923 and 1934. Finally, this 1917 trip also marked the beginning of Clatworthy's career as a slide lecturer. For the next 17 years, Clatworthy would spend his off-seasons presenting his autochromes at packed venues throughout the country. Clatworthy's most notable lecture venues included the Field Museum, the American Museum of Natural History, and Carnegie Museum. Between Clatworthy's lectures and published images, his work was seen by over ten million people in over 160 countries.

During the 1940s, Clatworthy partnered with his son, Fred Jr., to produce chromogenic color images of the Estes Park area for calendar and postcard reproductions. In 1949, Clatworthy accompanied his daughter, Barbara, on a tour of Europe that included stops in England, France, Holland, Italy, and Switzerland. Fred Payne Clatworthy passed away in Estes Park in 1953 at the age of 78.

Scope and Contents note

This collection contains photographic material and papers primarily created by Estes Park photographer Fred Payne Clatworthy (1875-1953). The bulk of the collection consists of 1019 Autochromes made by Clatworthy from circa 1916-1932 that primarily depict landscapes of the western United States and areas located near Clatworthy's residences in Estes Park, Colo. and Palm Springs, Calif., as well as his trips to Hawaii in 1926, Polynesia (Hawaii, Tahiti, and New Zealand) in 1928, and Mexico in 1929 and 1930. Other photographic material in the collection date from 1885-1943 and include glass plate negatives and photographic prints that depict a cross-country bicycle trip Clatworthy took between 1898 and 1899 as well as film negatives, photographic prints, and slides of the Clatworthy family and their travels; scenes from Rocky Mountain National Park (Colo.) and Estes Park (Colo.) areas; and promotional images of the Estes Park area that feature models, conventions held at the Stanley Hotel, and Young Mens' Christian Association camps and organizations.

The collection additionally includes manuscript material documenting Fred Payne Clatworthy's business, family, and travels. The Clatworthy business papers date from 1904-1970 and consist of correspondence, legal and financial documents, ephemera, and printed material concerning his photographic career. The Clatworthy family papers date from 1889-1993 and include daughter Barbara Clatworthy Gish's correspondence and research into her father's life; Fred Payne Clatworthy's personal correspondence; biographical articles and notes written about Clatworthy; oral history transcripts of interviews with members of the Clatworthy family; printed material; and probate documents. Documents related to Clatworthy's travels date from 1887-1930 and mainly consist of personal and professional correspondence from the photographer's sponsored and unsponsored photographic assignments.

Subseries C. Trips, 1887-1930 0.2 linear feet

Arrangement note

This subseries is arranged alphabetically by trip/location.

Scope and Contents note

This subseries contains documents related to Fred Payne Clatworthy's (1875-1953) travels. Most of these trips were photographic assignments for Clatworthy that were financially sponsored by various transportation companies in exchange for use rights to the images he shot on location. Documents related to a select few of Clatworthy's personal trips have also been included in this subseries as these trips were particularly pertinent to the development of his life and career. The bulk of the subseries is comprised of incoming and outgoing correspondence.

Hawaii, Lehua, Kauai, and Oahu. Several of these images were featured in the Matson Navigation Company's travel publication, Aloha.

Los Angeles, Calif. to Flagstaff, Ariz., 1900

10/31-36

Scope and Contents note

Contains a letter by Clatworthy to his parents about a trip he took from Los Angeles, Calif. to Flagstaff, Ariz. in 1900. He departed from Los Angeles on January of 1900 via wagon and mule team and arrived in Flagstaff in April.

Mexico, 1928-1930

Scope and Contents note

Contains documents related to Clatworthy's trips to Mexico in 1929 and 1930. The bulk of the files are comprised of incoming and outgoing correspondence. According to the correspondence, the South Pacific Transportation Company was to sponsor Clatworthy's travel down the western coast of Mexico during March of 1929, but the company canceled this trip shortly before his departure due to political unrest in the region. Clatworthy eventually made the trip instead in October 1929. He returned to the region again in March 1930. According to correspondence and identified autochromes, over the course of the two trips, Clatworthy photographed Compostela, Cuernavaca, Mazatlan, Guadalajara, Tonalá, San Juan Teotihuacán, Tlaxcala, Tepetzotlan, Tepoztlán, Lake Chapala, Mexico City, and Zapopan. 13 autochromes from Clatworthy's 1929 trip appeared in the July 1930 edition of National Geographic magazine.

professional correspondence. According to the correspondence, the trip was sponsored by the Matson Navigation and Union Steamship Companies. On February 22, 1928, Clatworthy departed for Wellington, New Zealand aboard the U.S.S. Makura. The trip included stops in New Zealand, Tahiti, and Hawaii. Clatworthy spent the majority of his time in New Zealand capturing autochromes of Auckland, Queenstown, Aoraki/Mount Cook National Park, Milford Sound, Mount Egmont, Roratura and Lake Te Anau. A few of the Autochromes feature Maori people. These images were likely shot in Rotorua, New Zealand at Whakarewarewa, a geothermal area and tourist destination that employed professional Maori guides. Clatworthy departed from Auckland, New Zealand on April 10 aboard the R.M.S. Aorangi and arrived in Honolulu, Hawaii on April 20.

Dating from 1929 to 1930, these files contain Autochromes shot by Fred Payne Clatworthy' (1875-1953) during his trips to Mexio in 1929 and 1930. According to the correspondence, the South Pacific Transportation Company was to sponsor Clatworthy's travel down the western coast of Mexio during March of 1929. The Southern Pacific canceled this trip shortly before Clatworthy's departure due to political unrest in the region. Clatworthy eventually made the trip in October of 1929. He returned to the region again in March of 1930. Accroding to correspondence and identified autochromes, over the course of the two trips Clatworthy photographed Compostela, Cuernavaca, Maztalan, Guadalajara, Tonalá, San Juan Teotihuacán, Tlaxcala, Tepotzotlan, Tepoztlán, Lake Chahalla, Mexico City, and Zapopan. 13 autochromes from Clatwothy's 1929 trip appeared in the July, 1930 edition of National Geographic Magazine.

the trip was sponsored by the Matson Navigation and Union Steamship Companies. On February 22, 1928, Clatworthy departed for Wellington aboard the S.S. Makura. The trip included stops in New Zealand, Tahiti, and Hawaii. Clatworthy spent the majority of his time in New Zealand capturing Autochromes of Auckland, Queenstown, Aoraki/Mount Cook National Park, Milford Sound, Mount Egmont, Roratura and Lake Te Anau. A few of the Autochromes feature Maori people. These images were likely shot in Rotorua, New Zealand at Whakarewarewa, a geothermal area and tourist destination that employed professional Maori guides. Clatworthy departed from Auckland on April 10 aboard the R.M.S. Aorangi and arrived in Honolulu on April 20.

Subseries C. Negatives, 1894-1947 2.0 linear feet*Arrangement note

This subseries is arranged alphabetically by type of negative format and accession number.

Scope and Contents note

Negatives,

This subseries includes gelatin dry plate glass negatives, and cellulose nitrate and acetate film negatives shot by Fred Payne Clatworthy (1875-1943) from 1893-circa 1940. The cellulose acetate film negatives date from 1935-1947 and include panoramic views of locations in the Estes Park and Rocky Mountain National Park areas, images from a personal trip that Clatworthy took to Canada in 1937, and unidentified portraits of people and organizations. The cellulose nitrate negatives date from circa 1905-1931 and depict panoramic views of the Estes Park and Rocky Mountain National Park areas. The glass plate negatives consist of gelatin dry plate glass negatives of various sizes that date from 1894-circa 1940 and depict locations in the Rocky Mountain National Park and Estes Park areas; other locations in Arizona, California, Colorado, Illinois, New York, and New Mexico, among others; scenes from Clatworthy's boyhood at his parents' home in Illinois and college education at Denison University in Granville, Ohio, and Stetson University in Deland, Florida; his cross-country bicycle trip taken between 1898 and 1899; and his 1900 trip from Los Angeles, Calif. to Flagstaff, Ariz. via wagon and mule team.

Subseries E. Slides, circa 1926-1953 1.3 linear feet*Arrangement note

This subseries is arranged alphabetically by subject and/or location.

Scope and Contents note

This subseries contains chromogenic color slides shot primarily by Fred Payne Clatworthy (1875-1953) circa 1926-1953. They also include slide copies of autochromes made by Clatworthy in the 1920s and 1930s, mostly depicting his trips to Mexico, Hawaii, and Polynesia. Other locations depicted in the slides include Arizona, Colorado, California, New Mexico, Utah, and South Dakota, among others. Many of the slides also feature members of the Clatworthy family or models posed in picturesque settings. Images from Clatworthy's 1949 trip to Europe with Barbara Clatworthy Gish (1921-2011) are also included in this subseries.
