Introduction

The Brown Family Papers were donated to the Colorado Historical Society by the estate of Lawrence P. Brown, son of J.J. and Margaret T. ("Molly") Brown. The donation occurred on February 1, 1957. By the terms of the donation, the papers were closed to access through 1975. The collection was first opened to researchers on January 6, 1976.

The collection consists of the following types and amounts of materials:

- Documents, papers, correspondence, and printed material related to the Brown family: approximately 4 cu. ft.
- Documents, papers, maps, correspondence, and printed material related to mining operations in Colorado: approximately 8 cu. ft.
- Photographs related to the Brown family and to mining operations in Colorado: approximately 2 cu. ft.

The bulk of the material in that portion of the collection related to the Brown family pertains to Lawrence P. Brown and his second wife, Mildred Gregory Brown; however, there are materials relating to J.J. and "Molly" Brown and other family members. Dates for these materials span the period from 1899 to 1955. There are some undated materials.

The bulk of the material in that portion of the collection related to mining operations in Colorado pertains to mining operations in which the Brown family held interests. Specific operations included are: the Ibex Mine, the Onota Group, the Ocean Development Corporation, and the Leadville Drainage Tunnel.

Most of the photographs in the collection are of family members and friends; many are unidentified. There are also some photographs of mining operations, particularly in the Leadville, CO, area, and of the early motion picture industry with which Mildred Gregory was associated.

James Joseph Brown (also known as J.J. and "Leadville Johnny") was born in Wymart, PA, September 27, 1854. In 1877 he travelled to Dakota Territory with the gold rush, and subsequently to Colorado. He engaged in mining operations in Georgetown, the Gunnison district, Aspen, Ashcroft and Leadville. He married Margaret Tobin in Leadville in September, 1886. In Leadville, Brown associated with Byrd Page, John Campion, and A.V. Hunter to form the Ibex Mining Company, which operated the Little Jenny mine. The Little Jonny was reported to have been the largest gold mine in the Leadville district and a source of great wealth for Brown and his partners. Brown was also an associate of David H. Moffat and Eben Smith. After his Leadville days, Brown was involved in mining operations in Creede, CO, and in Arizona. The Browns owned a fashionable home in Denver which has been preserved as an historic site, the Molly Brown home. J.J. and Margaret had two children: Catherine Ellen (Helen) Brown and Lawrence Palmer (Larry or Laurie) Brown. J.J. Brown lived apart from his wife in his later years. He died on September 6, 1922, at the home of his daughter, Helen (Mrs. George Benziger), in Hempstead, NY. (Rocky Mountain News, September 7, 1922).
Margaret Tobin Brown (also known as Molly and the Unsinkable Mrs. Brown) was born in Hannibal, MO, on July 19, 1868. She was the daughter of John Tobin. At the age of 15 she moved to Leadville, CO, to join her brothers. She married J.J. Brown. When she and her husband moved to Denver, Margaret was ridiculed for her "social climbing". She was active in charitable work including WW I relief efforts and help to families of striking miners in Colorado. "Molly" Brown is perhaps best known for having survived the sinking of the R.M.S. Titanic on April 15, 1912. When J.J. Brown died in 1922, he and Margaret had been separated for about five years; she received a $100,000 trust fund from his estate. In her later years, Margaret travelled extensively. She died in New York City on October 25, 1932. (Rocky Mountain News, October 28, 1932).

Lawrence P. Brown (Larry, Laurie) was born on August 30, 1887, in Hannibal, MO. He married Eileen Horton in 1911 while he was a student at the Colorado School of Mines. The marriage was opposed by his parents. Lawrence left school after his marriage and worked in the mines at Leadville. The couple had two children: Lawrence P (Pat) Brown, Jr. and Betty Brown (who later became a Roman Catholic nun, Sister Laetitia). Lawrence and Eileen were divorced in July 1915, and subsequently remarried at the start of WW I. Lawrence served in the United States Army during the war, attaining the rank of Captain. He was gassed in the attack on the Hindenburg Line in September, 1918. After the war Lawrence and Eileen were divorced again. In 1926 Lawrence married Mildred Gregory. After the death of his parents, Lawrence managed the family mining interests, including the Ibex Mining Company. He was a Director of the Colorado Metal Mining Fund and was active in veterans organizations and in Democratic politics. He died in Leadville, CO, on April 2, 1949. (Denver Post, January 17, 1927; Rocky Mountain News, April 3, 1949, and October 20, 1956.)

Mildred Gregory Brown was born in Philadelphia, PA, February 19, 1895. She was a motion picture actress with roles in films produced by the Lubin and Gaumont (American) studios in the second decade of the twentieth century. She died in Denver, CO, October 16, 1956. (Rocky Mountain News, October 20, 1956.)
BROWN FAMILY PAPERS

Scope and Content Note

The Brown family papers are organized into three major groups: papers related to family matters; papers related to mining operations in Colorado; and photographs. The papers cover the period from 1899 to 1955, with the bulk of the material falling into the period from the mid 1920s to the mid 1940s. Types of materials represented in the collection include records, correspondence, papers, printed materials, maps and photographs. Most of the materials are filed in chronological order.

Family related materials include insurance records, bank and other financial statements, tax returns and records, investment records, business and personal correspondence, legal documents relating to trusts, estates and wills, records of business ventures and inventions, military service records for Lawrence P. Brown, and newspaper and magazine clippings primarily pertaining to Margaret T. ("Molly") Brown.

The materials related to mining operations include periodic (weekly, monthly, etc.) reports of activities, assay reports, employment records, tunnel-level reports, and maps relating to four major Brown family mining ventures: the Ibex Mine, the Onota Group, the Ocean Development Corporation, and the Leadville Drainage Tunnel. Also included are general-type documents and newspaper clippings concerning mining in the Leadville, CO, area, and government publications relating to the mining industry.

Photographs are primarily of family members and friends. Included are photographs of J.J. Brown, Margaret T. Brown, Lawrence P. Brown, and Mildred Gregory Brown. Photographs related to the motion picture career of Mildred Gregory include "still" prints made from motion picture footage and "on-location" scenes from film productions; photographs of at least one major motion picture personage (Clark Gable) are included. Scenes of mining operations in Leadville, CO, are also included. The photographic material contains some nitrate-based negatives.

Major research strengths of the family related materials include correspondence concerning conflicts that arose between Margaret T. Brown and the other heirs of J.J. Brown over the disposition of his fortune, and financial records concerning the day-to-day activities of Lawrence P. and Mildred Gregory Brown. A major research strength of the mining related material is the concentration on routine activities at various mines and the insights these documents might provide on detailed mining operations.

A major weakness of the collection is the chronological ordering of many of the documents. This system of filing makes it difficult to find material related to a specific subject without recourse to several file folders; this problem is especially noticeable in the correspondence series, where correspondence from several different persons and related to many different subjects may all be filed together in one folder.
